postoffice and receiving the congratulations of several parties on the street on his improved appearance, having just re-turned from Omaha where he had been for medical treatment, he went to the office of Lester Eells to attend to business connected with the church. After having been there a short time he began to talk in a hesitating, incoherent manner, and Mr. Eells immediately noticed that he was very sick. Dr. Clark was summoned as quick as possible and the serious nature of the attack was at once apparent. The sufferer was conveyed to his home in an insensible condition about 11 o'clock and never spoke afterwards, al-though he was able for a short time to manifest intelligence. His last breath was drawn about 6 o'clock and a good man closed his earthly work loved and mourned by our whole people.

John McNamara was born in Ireland in 1821, and came to this country when scarcely more than an infant. He was taken into the family of Dr. Muhnenburg of New York City, who regarded him as a son. At an early age he evinced a de-sire to study, and was in the habit of reading every book to which he could obtain access. In order to foster this desire, Dr. Muhnenburg sent him to St. Paul's Seminary at Flushing, L. I., where he attained the greater part of his secular education. From the time his ideas first began to mature and shape themselves definitely in his brain he took a deep interest in religious matters. When comparatively a young man he was ordained as an Episcopal clergyman. He was progressive in his ideas, and was anxious to bear the brunt of the battle. He acsoon after his ordination was located in Geneva Lake, Wis., in 1850, but soon after went to St. Joe, Mo., as missionary in that appreciate the big ditch on their side of the dent worker in the cause of freedom.
